

The Braille chair

Waiting has never been so much fun for the blind and visually impaired!

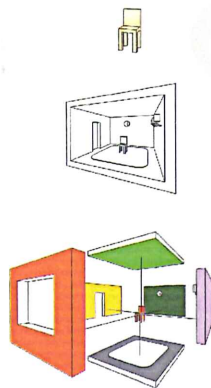

The waiting room of the GP or dentist, every now and then we all spend some time here. To kill the time we read some magazine lying on the table, look around to the paintings or the plants or flowers on the desk. But if you are hardly able to see, what do you do?

That's why I came up with the following; the Braille chair.

This is a special chair, it tells you what the room around you looks like. You can read what you are unable to see.

For people that are familiar with Braille it is crystal-clear.

For those who can't read Braille it is a new dimension and discovery.

Would you also like such an object in your waiting room, library, living room or other public room? You are welcome to contact me.

Wichards
geeft vorm

For other usable works
look on www.wichards.nl